A Man for All Seasons

Greetings from the President

Willing Hands

Billy Graham was addressing ten thousand international evangelists he brought to Amsterdam in 2000. Seventy percent of them were from poor, developing countries. He made the following statement:

"The older I get, the more I am asked who will succeed me. Well, the fact is that I am just one of many thousands who have been called to be an evangelist. I don't need a successor, only Willing hands to accept the torch I have been carrying."

The need is Willing hands!

Willing hands in proclaiming the marvelous life-giving news of Jesus Christ.

Willing hands to help and bless people by acts of kindness.

Willing hands to assist those in need.

Willing hands to bring the answers to those in despair.

Willing hands to provide men and women a hope and future.

A humble heart is expressed by the words Willing hands. As an alumnus, Billy has always felt that he was among many proclaiming spectacular news. His passion is that Willing hands would accept the torch and carry on the mission. To that goal, we march!

Trinity College of Florida

joins in this desire that many will be raised up with Willing hands to carry the banner of hope, peace, and joy in Jesus Christ. The focus of our founder, Dr. W.T. Watson, was to provide unmatched Biblical education to men and women who were called of God to be His emissaries world-wide. The education they receive, the mentoring they experience, and the service they perform launches them forward in accomplishing great exploits for the Lord.

As you review The CONNECTION may the Lord energize your heart and mind to join the journey of bringing the Good News to as many as possible and as soon as possible for the glory of the Lord. May you sense that spark of motivation to "accept the torch" with Willing hands!

Among Giants

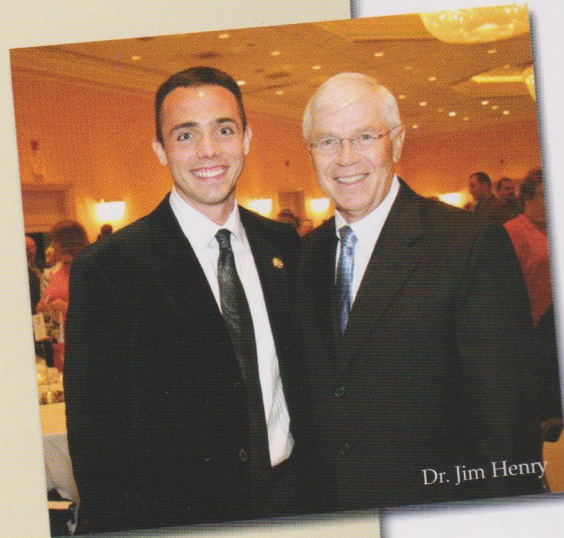

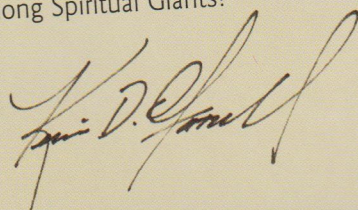

Have you ever met a giant? You know those larger-than-life individuals. Those whose very presence evokes emotions and thoughts which can inspire, intimidate, and leave you with a sense of awe and wonder. Giants by definition are ones to whom you and I look up. While physical giants often conjure thoughts of menacing warriors out to crush the opposition, Spiritual Giants suggest a feeling of power and respectability. While we often avoid the threatening physical giants, it should be our desire to spend as much time as possible with the Spiritual Giants God places in our lives. Spiritual Giants should be studied and even imitated as Paul writes in Philippians 4:8-9:

*Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is admirable - if anything is excellent or praiseworthy - think about such things. Whatever you have learned or received or heard from me, or seen in me - put it into practice.

Over the last few months I have had the privilege to spend time in the presence of several Spiritual Giants. Men like, John Corts, Jim Henry, and Billy Graham. These men who walk with God, talk with God, and desire to serve God with all of their hearts are an inspiration to the millions of lives they have touched. Yet, all these giants remain utterly humble in regards to the profound impact they have had in the world.

This issue of The CONNECTION features some of the contributions and writings these Spiritual Giants have made in the world today. As we celebrate the life and ministry of Billy Graham (1940), Dr. John Corts (1956) takes us inside God's Man for All Seasons. One Spiritual Giant speaking of another! As you read through the issue, you will begin to understand how lives surrendered to God can do the unthinkable and unimaginable. It is the hope of the editorial team that in this issue you will be inspired and blessed by being Among Spiritual Giants!

Pass the Word

In 1933, a young sailor named Les Spencer brought a fellow shipmate, Gurney Harris, to meet Dawson Trotman. Les wanted Dawson to share with Gurney some Bible teaching. "Tell Gurney what you taught me in the Word of God," Les said. Dawson quickly replied, "If you can't teach Gurney what I have taught you; I've failed!" This began a ministry principle of teaching others how to share the Good News of the Bible. These shipmates began to call themselves the Navigator Gospel Team. Soon other Navigator Teams formed and began using the same Navigator Principle to share the Gospel message.

Later, the Navigator Team saw Gurney Harris, my father, leave for Congo to serve with AIM. Les Spencer, for whom I was named, started to work with the American Sunday School Union and other Navigators and began a discipleship ministry with Billy Graham.

Dawson Trotman died saving a student from drowning at the Word of Life camp in 1956, but he touched the world with the retold the story in the Congo. Dad said that after hearing of the death of Dawson, Billy Graham was quoted as saying, "Oh God, help me rededicate my life!" I desired to know where Billy Graham had gone to Bible School and a pastor friend, O.C. Clark (1962), sent a catalog recommending Trinity College of Florida. The rest is history.

As Alumni, we have a story which is continuing today. Our Alumni around the world are changing the world for Christ. One such couple is Keith (1962) and Yvonne (1964) Lamb. It was a joy to honor Keith and Yvonne as Alumni of the Year for their Bible Teaching ministry in the Midwest at the 75th Anniversary Celebration Banquet. Keith and Yvonne also sent two of their children to Trinity College, Andrew Lamb (1988) and Kim (1990) Richards.

Please pass on your story. Send us your news, views, and dues. We can all share in passing on what we have learned in the Word at Trinity College of Florida.

Remembering to Preach the Word in season and out!

A Man for All Seasons

By John R. Corts

Trinity College of Florida proudly has laid claim to a special relationship with Billy Graham. It was in the "springtime" of this young man's life, he attended the small Bible College, then known as Florida Bible Institute. Now after a lifetime of global ministry, the "winter" of life gives cause to reflect: What discernable influences of College life contributed to his worldwide ministry. Just as the fabric of every life consists of many threads: family, church, community, education, etc., so Dr. Graham was impacted by many factors.

Advertisement for the College during Billy Graham's attendance

However, Trinity's influence is apparent in the historic ministry which this evangelist has had.

A Passion for Souls

Billy Graham has commented that one of his most enduring memories of Bible College was of a "white-haired professor (whose name was forgotten) standing in the classroom before his students with tears streaming down his face" and pleading with the students to bring the lost to the Savior. It was not the quality of his speech, nor the logic of his thought, nor the depth of his teaching presentation. Rather, it was the passionate burning heart of an instructor who was so aflame with desire to reach a lost world that it overflowed contagiously to the students.

A Divine Calling

Destiny is tied to Divine Purpose. It was while studying and examining the truth of God's Word that the conviction of personal calling came to Billy Graham. His education in the Scriptures along with the witness of the College community of faith, became the womb of vision which birthed a lifelong calling. Education, politics, business, communications and other fields shouted for his attention, but all the world's good was rejected for heaven's best. Billy Graham yielded his life to God's call while a student and has been faithful ever since with tenacious persistence, beginning one night of surrender on a golf course green and continuing his entire lifetime even through earth's halls of prestige and power.

A World Vision

Dr. W. T. Watson, Trinity's Founder, was credentialed by the Christian and Missionary Alliance as was Dr. John Minder, who befriended Billy Graham and gave special encouragement to him as a student and offered counsel in Graham's early ministry. These men carried deep convictions about the task of world evangelization that extended far beyond the shores of the United States. From the start of his ministry, Billy Graham has been an Evangelist to the entire world, including difficult places such as China and North Korea.

The Bible Says

Instruction in the Word of God, with peripheral philosophical and academic disciplines, gave a foundational basis to Billy's ministry. Studies all centered directly in the Bible and its impact in practical ministry. Later, when faced with critical arguments questioning his straightforward Biblical approach as too simplistic, Graham settled the issue in a commitment made by faith to the veracity of the Bible as God's inspired authoritative Word. A new power and dimension of confidence emerged in his life and ministry.

Billy Graham became known for the use of the phrase, "the Bible says". Often holding his Bible in hand, he quoted it profusely. He was taught the Bible at Trinity College of Florida and was taught to relate Biblical thinking with application in other disciplines in his continuing education.

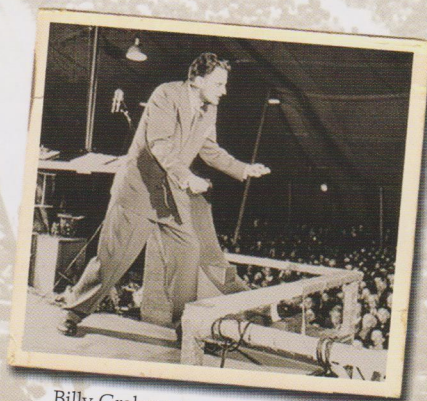

Practical Experience

At Trinity College of Florida many of the professors in the early days were practitioners, pastors and ministry leaders who were busily engaged in ministry. They taught students, while they were themselves actively serving Christ. The instruction had the fresh realism of ministry. Practical exercises encouraged students to apply the instruction in meaningful ways such as gospel teams, street preaching, trailer parks, prison visits and tract distribution in the slum and mission districts.

Billy Graham has spoken to mass meetings, heads of state and royalty, with style, confidence and authority as few persons in history. Yet, he has grown significantly since the seeds of his training experiences at Trinity, where he first developed his skills in presenting the gospel.

Prayerful Dependence

This Bible College was born in the great depression. Being interdenominational and not sponsored by an organized constituency, finances fluctuated and circumstances could be uncertain. Billy Graham was touched by those days when the leadership would call a "day of prayer". Classes were postponed. Students, faculty, Trustees, and friends gathered to pray and to seek the Lord's provision. When asked the secret of his major evangelistic events, Billy Graham replies, "Prayer, Prayer, Prayer." He learned early to prayerfully trust God, realizing nothing of lasting value is ever accomplished without much, earnest and consistent prayer.

Billy Graham preaches at a revival meeting in the 1950s

*"Be ye doers of the word
and not hearers
only."*

(James 1:22)

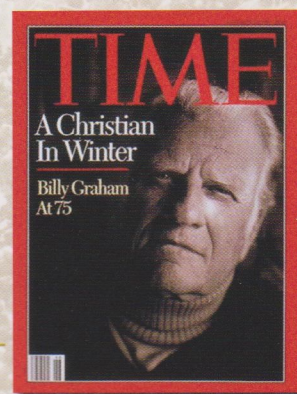

Urgency

Jesus our Savior is coming again! The Bible reveals this driving motivation of early believers. There is an end of the age. Eternity is before all of us. We must work while it is day to bring as many as we can to faith in our coming King. Over and over again, Billy Graham has preached on the end of the world, the second coming of Christ, and the signs of the times; woven into these themes, he passionately preached the evangelistic appeal to repent and to receive Christ as Savior and coming King.

After a lifetime of faithful ministry, Billy Graham, as God's Ambassador, has represented well the King of Kings, Heaven's Sovereign. The Trinity College of Florida family thanks God for Billy Graham, A Man for All Seasons, who even in his "winter" years holds to those formative truths, distinctives that were God-instilled in the springtime years he spent among us.

Dr. John R. Corts (1956) has served as an area-pastor, Trinity College of Florida faculty member, Trustee, and President. He has also served as an associate with the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association holding the position of Chief Operating Officer and President from which he retired in 2002.

The May 2007 dedication of the Rev. Billy Graham's Library included a guest list of 1,500. It was humbling to be among those invited to the celebration. Held on the grounds of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association Headquarters, the dedication was a moving tribute commemorating the life and ministry of one of the world's greatest Evangelists. The sights, sounds, thoughts, and emotions from this experience will not soon be forgotten. This is the journey to that moment in history.

The Journey Begins

The weather has been unusually hot for this time of year in North Carolina - so I've been told by the natives - but the drive to the state has been pleasant as Florida flat lands turn to gentle Carolina rolling hills. Leaving from the college that gave Billy Graham his training for ministry and arriving now at the organization that bears his name has been a profound and moving experience.

When the shuttle bus arrives at the library grounds, we see reporters, cameramen, sound and lighting technicians, and others all jockeying for the right spot and location.

In front of the library stands a massive open white tent with hundreds of white chairs lined side by side in preparation for tomorrow's ceremony. The tent is reminiscent of an old church revival meeting. It is a tabernacle, waiting to receive the minister of the Gospel we have all traveled to honor.

As we exit the bus, we see for the first time the Billy Graham Library. My eyes are drawn to the wooden barn which stands central in the scene and I cannot help but look at the huge glass cross - several stories high - which serves as the entrance. To the left of the barn stands a massive silo giving the campus a distinctive farm atmosphere. To the right of the barn stands the original 1927 Graham family home. We are told it was painstakingly moved brick by brick and restored here.

An Eyewitness to History

into a small reflective cove. All over the grounds speakers softly play the hymn, Just As I Am. This was the invitation hymn sung at Billy Graham Crusades. I snap a couple of pictures realizing that they will never capture the full emotion I am experiencing.

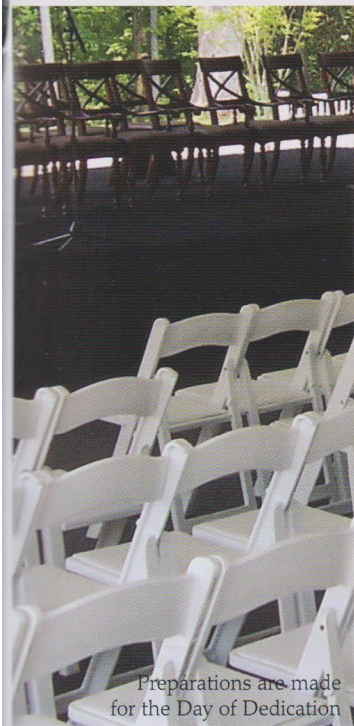

I approach the library entrance and gaze up at the glass cross. It reminds me of the gospel message that we must all pass through the cross to find forgiveness of sin and a restored relationship with God.

As I enter the hall, my eyes are compelled to look up - as if searching for God Himself. Immediately, I see the scripture etched in the cross beams. I recognize John 3:16. Scripture is in all the beams; verses Billy Graham has no less preached hundreds of thousands of times.

I have to look hard before I can even find a picture of Billy Graham, the humble man whom this site honors. As I stroll through the library, I see Franklin Graham, Billy's son and the organization's president, giving an interview. My dad stops, shakes his hand, and engages in a brief conversation. I snap another picture.

Billy & Franklin Graham with the former U.S. presidents

Preparations are made for the Day of Dedication

After a short film, we enter a series of rooms, the first of which is a replica of a 1949 Los Angeles tent revival. All the rooms represent some facet of Graham's life. The most captivating is the room dedicated to his wife, Ruth. The love story is gripping - the "Best Christian I know" Billy says of Ruth.

I see familiar faces of ones who have been connected with Billy Graham and Trinity College of Florida: John Corts, John Minder, and W.T. Watson. I even view Billy's Commencement program when he graduated from Trinity College of Florida (then known as Florida Bible Institute) and I am impressed by all the preaching Bibles on display; each is extensively underlined and marked revealing the Graham train of thought.

The final exhibit hall holds all of Billy Graham's awards: his Presidential Medal of Freedom from Ronald Reagan, his honorary knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II, and his Congressional Gold Medal.

The Billy Graham Library was less about the man and more about the message. Billy Graham's humility, simplicity, and passion for Christ flow out of the exhibit halls. My entire experience can be summed up by viewing one verse which was extensively underlined by Billy in one of his preaching Bibles. John 3:30, "He must increase, but I must decrease."

The Day of Dedication

We arrive at the grounds of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association about 11:15am. The number of reporters has nearly doubled since yesterday. My father and I secure great seats. The two-and-one-half hour wait begins. Eventually, I like other men, have to take off my suit coat. We are told the temperature is to reach 91 degrees.

As we look out from the tent, we see the Library in the distance; each time the glass doors open, people jump out of their seats wanting to catch a glimpse of Billy Graham or one of the former U.S. presidents who have been invited.

"He must increase, but I must decrease."

John 3:30

The first guest to come is former First Lady Barbara Bush. She makes her way down to thunderous applause. Then quiet again - finally, the doors open and out walks former presidents, Carter, Bush, and Clinton followed by Franklin and Billy Graham. Billy looks frail and uses a walker. The group poses for pictures before Billy gets into a golf cart. The former presidents walk together. What a sight. Men who have led our country now honoring a man who spiritually guided them.

Each president shares how Billy Graham impacted his life. The most moving is former President George H. W. Bush's tear-filled ending.

Finally, Billy Graham speaks.

"I feel like I have been attending my own funeral," he jokes. He speaks from the heart and though he is frail, you can sense the passion in his heart for Christ.

We sing two hymns: How Great Thou Art and To God Be the Glory. Three ministers offer dedicatory prayers. And then it is over.

What an experience. It made me want to live a life of humility, simplicity, and passion. Billy Graham impacted the world and changed people's lives by preaching the Gospel. He has seen and been used by God for great things. I was part of history.

Celebrating the 75th Anniversary

On Friday night, May 4, 2007 over 500 invited guests gathered at the Innisbrook Resort & Golf Club in Palm Harbor to commemorate the 75th Anniversary of the founding of Trinity College of Florida. Alumni from twelve states, all living former College presidents, present and former faculty and staff, leaders in the evangelical community, community and business leaders, and friends of the College gathered for a night of celebrating the College's rich heritage and anticipating its promising future. The evening also provided the opportunity for the College to recognize the contribution of alumni, faculty, and staff who have distinguished themselves over the course of the year. Dr. John R. Corts, former President of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association delivered the keynote address. Dr. Corts spoke of the scope of the impact the small College has made in the lives of millions of individuals around the world.

On Saturday morning, May 5, 2007, the College community gathered at Seven Springs Presbyterian Church in New Port Richey, Florida for the 2007 commencement exercises. Degrees were conferred on thirty-seven graduates. Mr. Ray Murray, a Tampa Bay area business leader, was honored with a Doctor of Humane Letters (L.H.D.) for his philanthropic and civic work. Dr. Jim Henry, Pastor Emeritus of First Baptist Church of Orlando and former President of the Southern Baptist Convention, delivered the commencement address. Dr. Henry challenged the graduates to commit their lives to the Glory of God and to work with diligence in serving Christ.

Consumers Digest Magazine Names Trinity College of Florida Best Value

Consumers Digest magazine named Trinity College of Florida the number two best value in Private Colleges and Universities in the nation. The June 2007 issue of Consumers Digest lists the top twenty-five best values for schools using a formula combining academic criteria for first-time freshmen (standardized test scores, high-school rank, grade-point average) with the institution's educational quality (4 and 6 year graduation rate, student-to-faculty ratio, percentage of faculty holding a PhD). Together

Consumers Digest formed a value-index which was then combined with the cost of attending the school to determine which colleges and universities offered the best academic value per dollar.

"Expert opinions and solid recommendations are two of our strengths," said Randy Weber, publisher of Consumers Digest. "We applied those strengths to this examination of our country's higher-learning institutions. It's designed to help parents and students find schools that will meet families' performance and financial requirements."

Trinity College of Florida President, Dr. Mark T. O'Farrell, was thrilled with the announcement. "We are deeply grateful for this professional validation of our strong academic offerings which are delivered in an affordable manner. We value Consumers Digest's recommendation and encourage students and families from across the nation to discover the extraordinary educational and financial benefits of attending Trinity College of Florida," said Dr. O'Farrell.

Only Brigham Young University-Hawaii in Laie, HI received a higher index score than Trinity College of Florida. "In effect this makes Trinity College of the Florida the best value for a private college or university in the continental United States. You have to travel all the way to Hawaii to find a better value. Trinity College of Florida is a hard value to beat," said Kevin O'Farrell, Director for Community Relations & Marketing for Trinity College of Florida. The Consumers Digest rankings were based on information gathered from the 2005-2006 academic school year which was the most recent data available.
